Profile

Jamie Alvarado-Taylor's commitment to collaborative excellence drew her to Stein Sperling's injury law practice. Jamie's compassionate nature allows clients to trust and feel comfortable that she will get the best result for their case, so they can focus on their recovery.

Jamie believes that the effective practice of law involves a unique and customized approach to each of her client's specific needs and circumstances. She works diligently to craft carefully personalized strategies that address and honor the individual circumstances and goals of each case.

Jamie guides her clients through the legal process, and explains clearly how the law works in relation to their particular injury. Her fluency in Spanish, as well as English, helps to ensure that her clients fully understand their case in either language.

Prior to joining Stein Sperling, Jamie was an attorney at a local firm, handling criminal, traffic and family law matters.
