Profile

Naila Herrera combines a strong sense of compassion, focus and determination to ensure that her clients have a strong advocate to guide them through their personal injury case.

Naila works diligently to make sure her clients are fully compensated for their injuries. In pain and financial distress, her clients need accurate, timely information and a resourceful, compassionate advocate. Knowing that those who seek a personal injury lawyer are often concerned with both physical and financial stressors, Naila is motivated to structure their cases in ways that obtain the fairest, most positive outcome.

Prior to joining Stein Sperling, Naila crafted her skills as a mediator and client advocate with the University of Maryland Francis King Carey School of Law, Clinical Law Program.
