Profile

Getting to know each client as an individual with distinct needs and concerns helps Aron Benjamin craft personalized strategies to effectively litigate their personal injury cases. “In my experience, a one-size-fits-all approach to problem solving never helps anyone.”

An active listener who prides himself on his communication skills, Aron is adept at familiarizing his clients with the process of litigation and guiding them confidently through it.

Recognizing that injured clients are in distress and that time often is of the essence, Aron commits himself to establishing a trusting relationship with each of his clients, anticipating their needs, and then promptly addressing every concern they may have.

Aron’s experience and his disarming demeanor brings a sense of calm to his clients, their cases, and even to the courtroom. In addition to personal injury work, Aron also handles criminal law matters including theft, assault, drug possession, and traffic offenses. Prior to joining Stein Sperling, Aron worked as an Assistant State’s Attorney in Carroll County, Maryland, where he served as an advocacy and investigation center prosecutor and coordinated the Carroll County Drug Treatment Court. The advocacy work he did on behalf of vulnerable children is one of his most meaningful accomplishments.

Education
